

That's What You Get Linda Allen

There was an old woman who lived in the Heights
She was 80 years old - she was wealthy, and bright
She owned a fine cadillac she liked to drive
To her local grocery each evening at 5

But the city of Boston has too many cars
And one day, she'd circled the block for an hour
When finally a car pulled out, leaving a spot
And she angled and started to back the car up

When out of the mirror she saw a red flash
And a little sports car with a screech and a dash Flew into the spot she was going to back in
And a young man got out, he was wearing a grin

And he smirked and he waved -- he was feeling quite slick
And said, "That's what you get when you're young and you're quick!"

But his smile kind of froze, and he started to run
As the woman smiled too, and gave the caddy the gun
And she rammed that red sports car right into a ditch
And said, "That's what you get when you're old and you're rich."
